We always keep your information private;
People who work in the practice can use your information to look after you.

Sometimes we might need to share your records with other people who look after you, such as the hospital or another doctor or nurse; this is in the best interest of your care.

People who use your information cannot tell anyone about what you say to them, unless they are worried about your safety, or the safety of someone else.

Sometimes we need to use your information to help other people, to teach them to learn new things. We will remove your name age and where you live so no one will know it's about you.

You have a right to ask us not to share your information.

If you want to look at your records or if you have some questions about them, or don't think they are correct, please ask a member of staff and we can help.

Ask your doctor or nurse any questions you want. You can also speak to the Data Protection Officer whose job it is to help us keep your information safe and private.

We do our best to look after your information, but if you are not happy with something we have done you can speak to a member of our team who will put you through to the most appropriate person.
